

Patty Heenan has started making masks out of Virginia Tech fabric to raise funds for local food banks. The masks are 100% double cotton with a coffee filter in between the layers for extra filtering. Patty is asking for any donation that a person would like to give.

Why Virginia Tech fabric, you ask? Because her son graduated from Virginia Tech and her grandson is a freshman.

ALL of the donations go to a local food bank. How do you get one of these masks? You could pick one up from her front porch and leave a donation – she lives directly across from the East Falls Church Metro at 6531 Washington Blvd.

If you would like one delivered or mailed to you, please email Patty at canestra7@aol.com. Donations can be made via VENMO to Patricia Heenan (ID is Patricia-Heenan-2).

Thank you, Patty, for all you're doing to help local food banks and to keep our community safe and healthy!
